Pillar II
Blue skills of the future and ocean literacy

 4 | Quality education, Training and lifelong learning

The Atlantic Youth project will ensure the pedagogical quality of the activities, their contribution to the educational project of the class, their accessibility for all pupils, and their affordability.

Overview

Implementation of 5 local inclusive maritime education projects in Ireland, United Kingdom, France, Spain and Portugal. Projects will be coordinated at a transnational level, and each will be managed by a partner. The work carried out on the five sites will lead to the production of modules that will be transferable and meet the objectives of Atlantic Youth. On each of the three school years, the cycle of educational activities will end with a transnational meeting of pupils, both educational and maritime, organized on a different venue at the end of each June.

As well, at least two guides for teachers and authorities and two video tools for pupils will be developed and made available to the structures and people interested in the objectives of the project.

The highlight of the project was the European End-of-Project Conference in June 2020. The document "Assessment and Perspectives" and the intellectual productions of the Atlantic Youth Project were presented.

Communication actions were implemented during the 3 years and the dissemination of the results and the productions will be carried on in the long term, after 2020.
